

Project Design Document:

Project Name: "FundFilm" : Film Fundraising/ Promotional Site

Authors: Margaret Bertoni, Utkarsh Dev

Brief Description: This webapp will allow a movie director to provide updates to their ongoing project, without the hassle of learning how to make a webapp and engage directly with the supporters. The director would be able to provide updates like behind the scenes , progress, any obstacles, etc, and keep the supporters in the loop about the status of the project. This app would also allow supporters to pledge a certain amount of money and support the film. They'd be able to see how much money the project has raised and how much would they contribute, along with contributions of other users.

Scope:

- Static front end pages that uses HTML5, CSS and JavaScript
- Main pages include: Homepage, Make a Pledge, Updates.
- Two forms exist, one for making a pledge and the other for the director to provide updates
- The director has an admin key that will
- Responsive design for desktop, tablet and mobile.

User Personas:

Film Director: Someone who wants a portal to acquire funding from supporters. They're not tech savvy, so they would like a very simple interface that they can operate securely to acquire funding from prospective pledges and to provide updates to the supporters, with an option to edit or delete any updates if needed.

Prospective Patron: As someone looking to support an indie film, they want to learn about the project, and see the progress and total funding of the project to determine whether it's worth their money or not. And once they do, they'd want to quickly pledge a certain amount of money, even make multiple pledges, in support of the project

User Stories:

- As a Film Director...
 - I am a creative, non-tech savvy director.
 - Too busy, doesn't have time to learn the backend of a website system.
 - I would like to quickly see how many donors there are and how much has been raised.
 - Also I want to quickly submit updates on the project without having to deal with formatting/backend.
- As a Prospective Patrons

- I want to learn about the film to determine if they want to support it.
- I want to quickly indicate my support of the project
- I might want to make multiple donations/pledges if I see that there's momentum picking up.
